

Why are death rates going down?

More people have access to clean water 	Better living conditions for some people
More people enjoy a varied diet, which means better health 	Better health facilities, such as clinics and hospitals
Better health education	Better knowledge of disease
More babies are born in hospital, where expert help is on hand, rather than at home, especially in MEDCs	More women in LEDC's receiving education
Children are inoculated against killer diseases such as polio 	An increase in aid from other countries
In MEDC's improved design for new housing and strict building regulations	Pre-natal care for pregnant women is improving

Write next to each of the numbers one of the reasons from the cards, then complete the sentence about why you think it is the most important reason.

Then you can find a picture on clip art or the internet to show that you understand what the reason is.

1.

I think this is the most important reason for death rates going down because 2.

I think that this is the second most important reason for death rates going down because 3.

I think that this is the third most important reason for death rates going down because

Now you need to choose the card which you think is the least important reason and do just as you did with the important reasons

I think this is the least important reason for death rates going down because

Other reasons that I think death rates are going down are:
